2018 RFP Funding Announcement

We are pleased to announce that the WES Medical Advisory Board has concluded their ranking of the 2018 Research Grant applicants and made the following selections:

Dr. Greg Wang, UNC Chapel Hill; Dr. John Colgan, University of Iowa; Dr. Raghavan Chinnadurai, University of Wisconsin; and Dr. Tomasz Skorski, of Temple University.

All four of these researchers will receive $50,000 grants from When Everyone Survives Foundation for Leukemia Research.

The research they are conducting was judged to be innovative and likely to be curative against the fight of leukemia and/or other blood related concerns. We are honored and excited to fund these research initiatives. Full details of their research proposals and their bios will be available on-line at www.wesfoundation.org under the Leukemia tab in the coming weeks

As well, When Everyone Survives wants to personally acknowledge the time, commitment and effort required by the Medical Advisory Board. The Chairman, Dr. Edmund K. Waller, MD PhD, FACP of Emory University/Winship Cancer Institute, Drs.

Langston, Bernal-Mizrachi, and Castellino carefully considered each application before coming up with the selections and rankings. We are indebted to them for their counsel and evaluation of the research grant submittals. We could not do what we do without them.

Funding for all four initiatives will take place on July 1st and, at that time, our cumulative funding since inception will exceed $1,700,000.

Join us as we pray that these research efforts will be successful and, in turn, provide the day When Everyone Survives.

Thank you to all of you who are pursuing a cure for leukemia and devoted to finding a cure. We are working hard to grow our awareness and increase funds raised in order to fund even more of your grants in the future.

God Bless.

WES
